Variations in the intensities received at one ear are measured while a steady tone of the same frequency is measured at the other ear. Examination of the response curves and their slopes in the middle portion, as well as of the differential thresholds, shows that there is always an attenuation in differential sensitivity. This phenomenon will be [illegible] pronounced, the higher the intensity of tone on the other ear. It can be assumed that this effect is of cortical origin and is, perhaps, a question of contrast. According to the statistical studies carried out in this work, the differential thresholds obtained by measuring the intensity variations on one ear while simultaneously applying a steady tone of the same frequency to the other ear, are the higher, as the tone is binaurally in phase, and are the lower if the tone is out of phase, provided the frequency is lower than 1000 cycles/sec.
